

Most of these photos have no writing on the backs to provide a date or context.

Before moving to Progress midway through my first grade year, the family lived in an apartment above Uncle Charles Shields printing press (Triangle Press) in Penbrook. All of the photos are from the time the family lived in Penbrook.

m01 – Photos of my brother Gary, including what was apparently his favorite stuffed animal—a chicken?

m02 – mostly pictures of Jim as a baby with grandmother Edna Hollenbaugh, father George Miller and brother Gary Miller. Bottom center photo is Jim with a birthday cake, possibly four candles on the cake?

m03 – Left to right, top to bottom. Jim birthday, Jim (Atlantic City), George and Gary (Atlantic City), Jim birthday, Gary, Gary and George

m04 – Left to right, top to bottom. Jim, Jim, Jim, Gary, Jim and Marie, Jim (Atlantic City)

m05 – George, Marie and Gary (Atlantic City). Gary in his Sunday best (including shorts).

m06 – Left to right, top to bottom. Marlin Kreiser (George Miller's brother-in-law), Jim, Gary-Jim-George and unknown mutt, Jim, Gary and Jim (last photo rescanned in later file)

m07 – A.J. being presented a sales award at Bowman's Department Store, Edna Hollenbaugh's notes about John H. Shields (according to John Edgar Shields the genealogist, John H. Shields lost his arm at the Battle of the Wilderness, not the Battle of Antietam), Jim, Jim m08 – Back of Edna Hollenbaugh's note on John H. Shields, back of Flora Lenker's campaign notice (see m11 for front), Nora Hollenbaugh's funeral ote m09 – Note on the back of the top postcard reads, “Shields’ Gettysburg Camp Park – cabins, gas, oil, refreshments, souvenirs, postcards, guide books, and antique guns. All modern conveniences, Operated by Mrs. A. H. Shields” m10 – Edna Marie Hollenbaugh’s senior page from the 1930 Pioneer, the yearbook of the John Harris High School

m11 – Gary-Jim-George, Gary, Jim, Lenker campaign notices

m12 – Wedding license of George Miller and Marie Hollenbaugh

m13 – George Miller’s birth certificate